Parents' Apathy to Polio Puzzling

Until the discovery of the Salk vaccine several years ago, summer weather brought fears of parents over another season when infantile paralysis might strike a crippling blow to loved youngsters.

Today quantities of the Salk vaccine sit on shelves, unused. Pharmaceutical laboratories have cut back on their production of the medicine. Why?

Simply because of indifference on the public's part and inexcusable apathy on the part of many parents. Salk vaccine sitting on a shelf can't save a life. It must be applied. Many a person crippled by polio years ago would seize at the opportunity if that were possible.

Yet today in Salem and Columbiana County, despite aggressive immunization programs by local and county health districts, a large number of children are still unprotected. Adults under 40 need it, too.

Last May the county health department distributed 2,738 polio vaccine questionnaires and only 1,512 or 55 per cent was returned. This poll showed 1,253 had not been innoculated, 116 had received the first shot. 365 indicated second shots received and only 118 had the third shot.

The Columbiana County health department, from January, 1957, to May of this year, administered the Salk vaccine first shots to 4,138 children yet it is a known fact that hundreds of other youngsters are unprotected. Second shots went to 3,555 and 3,997 received the third and final innoculation.

Recently the Columbiana Rotary Club sponsored a clinic where the Salk drug was offered free. Only 40 children showed up.

Such parental neglect makes a mockery of one of the greatest medical discoveries of the century.

60-Minute Men Needed

A young man described as a "space expert," 38-year-old Col. William O. Davis of the U.S. Air Force, has resigned his commssion in a huff over feet-dragging by senior scientists.

A "senior scientist," it must be explained is a kind of "space expert" who has earned a reputation for having his feet on the ground. This is a condition that lends itself easily to the impression the seniors are dragging their feet, particularly as viewed by their juniors.

It could become one of the toughest problems of the space era, which is what we are supposedly entering, provided the Soviet Union doesn't slam the door after it. The same young expert had detected the problem elsewhere in the Defense Department, though in another form, before throwing in his colonelship.

Management experts, he complained, have been brought in from the outside to run military research along approved lines and all they do is block progress because they understand nothing but management. They are as hard to bear as scientists who understand nothing but science.

Experts seem to turn into specialists in knowing what cannot be done, and as their knowledge accumulates they reach the point where nothing can be done, unless all their strict requirements for proper procedure have been met first. They become like the "educationists" who are all method and no imagination They deserve their own titles: "managists" and "scientifists."

What Col. Davis thinks the space age needs is 60-minute men, as they say in football, not specialists, though he himself already has become an "expert" in space at the unripe young age of 38.

Beware of the Double Twisteroo

It never has been easy to know whether Secretary of Labor Mitchell makes it his official business to speak for working men and women as a whole; or for the unions that a minority of them have joined voluntarily and involuntarily.

But he does make it his business to know what is going and therefore must be taken at his word when he says the pending bill in the Senate concerning labor union malpractices is a phony.

This is an astonishing judgment in view of the favor the bill has drawn from such an expert in corrupt union practices as Sen. Mc-Clellan. But there would be no reason for Secretary Mitchell to take a stand against Sen. McClellan on this particular bill, unless he believes firmly it is a bad bill.

A bad bill had been predicted by skeptics. who about a month ago were predicting that the Democrats in control of the Senate might go even further than that and permit no bill at all. In a matter of this kind, it is necessary to take the word of experts for a bill's merit or lack of merit. The key expert in Congress is Sen. McClellan. who ran the Senate investigation of rackets in labor and management. The key expert in the Eisenhower administration is Secretary of Labor Mitchell.

If he says the pending bill is a double twisteroo, he would have a good reason to

A double twisteroo is something that leads people to believe one thing is about to happen when the intent is to make the opposite thing happen, like a feint to the midriff to bring down an opponent's guard so he can be struck on the chin. Or, more to the point, it is a proposal to reasure people that unions will be housecleaned so people will take it for granted that the housecleaning is in progress, when in fact the intent of the proposal is to make it unnecessary to do any housecleaning.

Or, in political parlance, a double tiwsteroo in the issue of labor union corruption would be a scheme to get voters' minds off the subject, in the belief it was beng taken care of by Congress, when in truth Congress was too scared of union influence at the polls to look cross-eyed at a union leader.

Congress is supposed to enact legislation at this session to protect the worker against corruption in unionism. The Democrats have written a bill they claim is adequate. The Republicans are lining up against the measure because, they say, it is weak and deficient. The secretary of labor, James P. Mitchell, who is a "moderate" if there ever was one on labor legislation and who has been very friendly to organized labor, says about the proposed bill:

"After examining and analyzing the proposals that have just been made to the Congress by the committee, I am deeply disappointed to find that these proposals contain deficiencies and weaknesses of such magnitude that, were they enacted into law, I am convinced they would provide only illusory protection to trade union members and to the public, as well as being almost impossible to admin-

For saying this, Secretary Mitchell was promptly attacked by Sen. Ives (R-NY) who sarcastically says Mr. Mitchell is trying "to make a Republican thing" out of the bill. Mr. Ives has declined this year to run for re-election. He has never really come to grips legislatively with the evils that have been going on inside labor unions for many years.

SEN. IVES is not one of those members of Congress who in his campaigns received financial support from the unions but there are many other legislators who have been receiving large campaign contributions. The sums contributed are, of course, a matter of record.

have made a "Democratic thing" out of labor legislation in the past and have seen to it that approximately 175 present members of the House and Senate did receive money contributions from the union committees in recent elections.

Nobody, moreover, can get the Democratic presidential nominati who doesn't have the support of the labor unions. President Franklin D. Roosevelt used to say about matters of importance at the Democratic national convention, including the approval of vice presidential candidates, "Clear it with Sidney." The reference was to Sidney Hillman of the big union of garment workers in New York.

Today, unless Walter Reuther of the United Auto Workers Union gives his "clearance," nobody can get the presidential or vice-presidential nomination on the Democratic national ticket. Sen. Ker.nedy of Massachusetts, who is often mentioned as a possible nominee on the Democratic ticket, cooperated with Sen. Ives and did a masterful job of putting together a piece of legislation that the labor unions find palatable.

THE LABOR LEADERS, however, really don't want any legislation passed and they may have enough votes to kill all the bills in the House later in the session. But they are appreciative of the strategy of the Massachusets senator in at least refusing to go along the route of the administration. which favors much more resrictive legislation.

The Republicans know they have a big issue in the corruption disclosed in labor-union finances.

The Democratic party's proposals would punish only individuals inside labor unions who mishandle funds but would do nothing to punish unions for irresponsible acts in the way of violence and secondary boycotts. Nor are the Democrats ready to defend the constitutional right of a worker to refrain from joining a union if he so desires or his right to insist that his dues shall not be used for political pur-

The whole debate will continue into the next campaign, when the American workingman will be asked to vote for members of Congress who are ready to protect his pay envelope not only against the raids of embezzlers and others who mishandle union funds but against the activities of politicians inside the labor unions who are interested primarily in feathering their

'Right to Work' Issue Subject of Debate

A debate was held last night during an open meeting at Union Hall on Prospect St. on the question of placing the "right to work" issue on the ballot in the November) election.

The issue concerns whether or not the following section shall be added to the Bill of Rights of the Ohio Constitution by amendment in the 1958 general election: (proposed amendment).

"No employer or labor organization shall deny or abridge the right to work by requiring membership or non-membership in, or payment or non-payment of money to a labor organization as a condition of employment or continued employment in this state.

"All agreements in conflict with this section are, to the extent of such conflict, unlawful and of no effect in this state."

William G. Spearman, assistant pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, served as moderator for the debate.

The affirmative team, debating for the constitutional right, consisted of E. Ralph Marin of 1396 E. 11th St. and Jack E. Rance of 1089 E. 10th St., who were invited to speak by the Columbiana County Council of AFL-CIO

The negative team, debating against the constitutional right of the proposed amendment, included Edward J. Hilland of Struthers, a staff representative of the United Steelworkers of Salem, and John F. Kelly of Lisbon, president of the Columbiana Council of AFL- atives in Youngstown Saturday

Drysdale, Newcombe, Furillo, Hodges Star

League cellar and shove Philadel-rivals, says steadiness is the key phia into it, the Dodgers went into today's game with this immediately behind them:

Clean-up batter Carl Furillo Wednesday night hit a sacrifice foursomes. A player gains a point baseball.

three runs with a homer and a dcuble. He did it after spending 45 minutes batting practice with a 15-year-old bat boy throwing to Young Don Drysdale won his first full-time stint since he beat the Phillies at Brooklyn last September.

The night before Don Newcombe went the route for the first time this season.

The Drysdale-Newcombe feats were notable because if either had winning records, instead of 3-8 and 0-5, as they are today, the Dodgers would hardly be in the basement, Wednesday night's 7-4 win was a big one for the Dodgers. Of Furillo's 420-foot wallop, neither Manager Walt Alston, Charles Dressen nor Reese, among others, could recall ever having seen two men score on such a hit in the majors.

Douglas Says to Ignore Moon Shot Dates Given

WASHINGTON - An Air(P) Force general who announced planning dates for shooting rockets at the moon got a verbal wrist slap from his boss Wednesday.

Secretary of the Air Force James H. Douglas said the dates announced by Lt. Gen. S.E. Anderson "should be wholly disregarded."

Anderson, director of Air Force research and development, said at news conference in Milwaukee Tuesday that the Air Force planned three moon shots this year, the first in August.

SHIFT IN OIL POWER - A dramatic change in the position of the United States as an oil power is shown in Newschart above. While America still leads in world oil production, U.S. reserves (oil still underground) are estimated today at 33 billion barrels as against 169 billion barrels in the Middle East. No major oil field (100 million barrels or more) has been discovered in the United States since 1953. Data from a recent study by Leonard M. Fanning, editor of World Petroleum Policies.

Omelet Adria

Ingredients: For each omelet-11/2 tablespoons butter, 1/4 cup thinly sliced shallots or thin strips onion, 1/4 cup coarsely chopped green pepper, 3 eggs, 2 anchovy fillets (drained and diced), salt, pepper.

Method: Melt 1 tablespoon of the butter in 8-inch cast aluminum or iron skillet. Add shallots or onion and green pepper; cook gently, stirring occasonally, until wilted and partly tender. Beat eggs just enough to combine yolks and the whites; add anchovies and salt and pepper to taste; go slow on the salt because the anchovies will be salty. Add remaining 1/2 tablespoon butter to skillet, then eggs and

Cook in French-omelet fashion, stirring over moderately low heat with flat of fork as eggs set around edges, raising heat for final cooking so bottom will set well; top should be slightly soft. Flip over half of the omelet to side opposite handle; hold warm plate to edge and turn omelet out on it. Serve at once.

Polish Noodles

Ingredients: 2 to 3 tablespoons butter, 1 medium-sized onion (cut in thin strips), 21/2 cups green cabbate (shredded coarsely and packed down), 1/2 cups cooked mediumwide noodles, salt, white pepper.

Method: Melt butter in 10-inch skillet; add onion and cook gently, stirring occasionally, until lightly browned. Add cabbage; continue cooking gently until cabbage is wilted slightly and still crisp. Add noddles and toss with onions and cabbage; add salt and pepper to taste; reheat if necessary. Makes

Note: If noodles are cooked ahead, douse in boiling water and drain well before adding to cab-

HAVEN OF SAFETY IN A SUDDEN STORM

Way back in the horse-and buggy era, this old covered bridge provided a welcome haven of protection for those caught on the road in an unexpected rain or hail storm. Today, a growing savings account is the best safety haven against financial "stormy weather" that can occur so suddenly, so unexpectedly. Open your account here now.
